Recycle your children's books by donating to BookSpring's ReBook Program

BookSpring is teaming up with healthcare, education, and community partners to give the right book to the right kid at the right time. Your donation will help to build home libraries, which contribute to success in school and in life.

Did you know that having just 20 books in the home means 3 more years of education? BookSpring's continuum of literacy programs provide children in need with at least 20 books to build a home library.

Donation Guidelines:

- Gently used infant board books, children's picture books, elementary chapter books,
- Young adult books, and adult bestsellers and contemporary non-fiction books with covers and pages intact, clean, and unmarked
- No textbooks, encyclopedias, or library discards
- No used coloring or activity books

Don't have a book to donate? You can still help! Consider a monetary donation. Give just $50 and you can say, "I bought a kid a library today." Make checks payable to BookSpring and mail to: 2006 Greenbrook Parkway, Austin, TX 78723.

Gently used books can be dropped off:
